

MRS. EDDY DIED SATURDAY NIGHT

GREAT LEADER OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH PASSES AWAY.

WAS ANNOUNCED ON SUNDAY

No Immediate Successor Will Be Named—Funeral Arrangements Not Completed.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Boston, Dec. 5.—More than a million followers of Mary G. Baker Eddy, today accepted the news of her death, in sorrow, but not a Christian Science leader in Boston would admit the church organization had suffered a loss to its organization as such, through Mrs. Eddy's death.

"My Mrs. Eddy's death we have lost the counsel of a leader but as the church organization is complete, no successor will be named," said Alfred Farlow, head of the organizations publicly department today.

The officials of the Mother Church of the Christian Science denomination decided this afternoon the funeral of Mrs. Eddy would take place at her late residence Thursday afternoon.

Alfred Farlow said today that many sympathetic telegrams had been received from branch churches in all parts of the world.

Mrs. Eddy passed away on Saturday evening but her death was not announced until the morning service of the Mother church in Boston, Sunday morning.

Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy, commonly spoken of as the discoverer and founder of Christian Science, was born in the town of New, New Hampshire, in the year 1821, the daughter of Mark and Abigail A. Baker. One of the most singular facts in relation to the woman is that, while no one has been more written about in late years, very little is actually known concerning her personal history and career. Reference books or current literature will be searched in vain for an unbiased sketch of Mrs. Eddy's life, in reference to this subject a magazine article that attracted considerable attention some time ago says:

"If she is genuine in her profession, as her followers ardently believe, she is one of the great of the world; if she is a charlatan, as the enemies of Christian Science maintain, she is the queen of chicanery. The devotees of Christian Science have printed whole libraries in her praise; the enemies of Christian Science have written even more in ridicule of her contentions and in detraction of her career. She has led a wonderful life, this old woman of power and mystery. It is not, I think, without reason, that she is called the daughter of a poor farmer, and an unknown dependent at fifty-five, has become rich and great in the nation at eighty-five—that alone is a romance. Yet there exists no impartial study of this life and of the cult into which it has developed."

A few known facts in regard to Mrs. Eddy's life include the following: Until she was almost past middle age she appears to have led the ordinary life of a woman of moderate or even lowly station. Some accounts have it that she was three times married, but most records agree that she had but two husbands. The first was Col. George W. Glover, a son of this union is still living in North Dakota. After Mr. Glover's death she married a man by the name of Asa G. Eddy.

Mrs. Eddy is said to have discovered Christian Science in 1866 and to have begun teaching it a year or two later, but it was many years after this before the cult obtained any headway. In the meantime Mrs. Eddy's career was one of vicissitudes and on one or more occasions she is said to have come into contact with the law. It was in Lynn, Mass., that the supposed "revelation of God" was made to Mrs. Eddy. A few years later she went to live in Houghton, Mass., where she obtained to be a disciple of a Dr. Quimby, a mental healer of the type now known as "spiritualists." In 1864, for some time she was a teacher of Dr. Quimby's system of healing.

In 1881 she established in Boston what she called the Massachusetts Metaphysical College. This she operated for several years and is said to have made considerable money out of it—one writer places the amount as high as a million dollars. The authorities, however, did not take kindly to the college and its system of awarding diplomas to so-called healers on the payment of several hundred dollars each and finally Mrs. Eddy found it necessary to close the institution.

Inspired respect. It drew its believers mostly from the rich and respectable. It doubled its membership in five years. It grew enormously wealthy and in 1905 it erected in Boston one of the costliest church buildings in the world.

But, while the material progress of the Christian Science movement is everywhere evidenced, the basic theory on which the doctrine is founded remains veiled in more or less obscurity. The popular idea is that the faith has to do with curing disease by divine aid, and it is supposed in all the affairs of life to give great calm and peace of mind. Beyond this there appears to be nothing very clear.

Since 1890 Mrs. Eddy lived in almost complete retirement at her home in Concord, N. H. In 1899 she appeared in public for the last time. In the spring of 1906 a report was circulated that Mrs. Eddy was either dead or dying and that another woman was impersonating her in order to deceive the public. To disprove this story Mrs. Eddy granted a very brief interview to a few newspaper correspondents who visited her home. At that time she appeared very feeble. Some said she was weak in mind as well as in body.

Many sensational stories have appeared from time to time in regard to Mrs. Eddy's wealth. Some writers have stated her to be the richest woman in America. However this may be it is certain that she has received a large annual profit from the sale of "Science and Health" and her other books, and it would not be surprising if her estate was found to reach seven figures.

A. O. U. W. PLANS A REORGANIZATION

Representatives of Order From Twenty Three States Are Attending Meeting of Supreme Lodge.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Louisville, Ky., Dec. 5.—A complete reorganization of the Ancient Order of United Workmen, the oldest fraternal insurance order in the United States, is expected to be brought about at a meeting of the supreme lodge which began in this city today with prominent representatives of the order. The affairs of the order have been entangled in litigation for several years and the present meetings is the first that the supreme lodge has held since 1907.

The litigation which has proven rather disastrous to the order, both as regards membership and finances, grew out of the refusal of certain grand lodges to assist in hearing the financial burden of heavy claims against grand lodges in other States. Some of the grand lodges withdrew rather than pay the extra assessment while others took the matter into the courts. A court decision was finally returned in favor of the supreme lodge and now representatives of the several States have come together to make an amicable arrangement and to decide upon such changes in the laws of the order as may be deemed necessary to meet the objections of the grand lodges and to restore the order to that condition of prosperity which it has enjoyed in the past.

CONGRESS MET AND ADJOURNED

THE HOUSE GALLERIES PACKED WHEN THE GAVEL FELL.

CHAMP CLARK IN FOCUS

Victors and Vanquished Congratulated and Sympathized with One Another During Opening Prelude.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Washington, D. C., Dec. 5.—Scenes that were familiar but none the less interesting greeted the eyes of the visitors who packed the galleries of the House today at the opening of the final session of the Sixty-third Congress. The crowds came early, and when the speaker's gavel fell promptly on the stroke of twelve, the galleries were filled with gayly dressed women, who added much to the picturesque aspect of the scene.

The most of the members also put in an early appearance and for two hours before the House was called to order the chamber resembled somewhat an exciting day on the Stock Exchange in New York. Victors and vanquished were there to congratulate and sympathize with one another over the results of the November ballot. To the speaker it was difficult to distinguish between the two. Everybody was loudly cheering everybody else on the floor and all the members were as lively as a lot of boys at the beginning of school.

The appearance of Speaker Cannon in the chamber was the signal for a hearty round of applause from both members and the gallery, though, if the truth must be told, "Uncle Joe" had to stand for a vast amount of "hitting" during the day.

Seated at his old desk and surrounded by a bevy of friends was Champ Clark, leader of the minority in the present session and the probable speaker in the next. From the manner in which his colleagues were huzzing, Mr. Clark evidently had certainly brought back with him a new batch of stories.

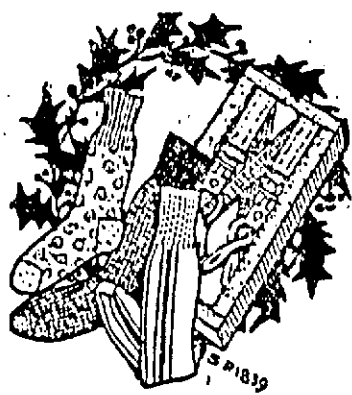

With him up and down the aisle greeted friends were Gen. H. H. Hingham, of the First Pennsylvania district, whose continuous service of over thirty years has entitled him to be called "The Father of the House." Gen. Hingham entered upon his seventieth year yesterday, but he might pass for fifty.

When Speaker Cannon, with two short taps of his gavel, had called the House to order, the buzz of conversation was hushed while the chaplain offered the opening prayer. A few other formalities were disposed of and attention was called to the deaths of five members of the House during the recess. In accordance with custom a resolution to adjourn was then offered and adopted as a further mark of respect to the memory of the deceased.

In the Senate the initial session was equally short. The public galleries were filled with Vice President Sherman, called the body to order. In the audience were families of many senators and men in public life. Several members of the diplomatic corps were present. A few changes were noticeable in the membership of the Senate. Death has removed Senators Daniel of Virginia; Clay of Georgia; Holliver of Iowa; McLaughlin of Mississippi and McHenry of Louisiana. The successors to most of these, by gubernatorial appointments, were on the hand to take the oath of office. When the two houses reconvened to-

NO CASE AGAINST STRICKER BROS.

Judge Grimm Declares Edgerton Ordinance Prohibiting Sale Of Liquor To Women Is Void.

In an opinion filed today in the case of the City of Edgerton vs. William and August Stricker, Judge Grimm finds that that provision of the Tobacco City liquor ordinance under which the defendants were prosecuted for selling a case of beer to a woman named Kleinhausen is void. All the matters made by either side and based on technical points of law are denied.

With regard to the main issue, the court answers the following question and answers it: "Is the ordinance prohibiting the sale of liquor to a woman a valid exercise by the common council of its delegated powers to regulate the liquor traffic within the city? It is not. It is purely class legislation, unjustifiable upon the theory of necessity as a police regulation, or otherwise. The state makes no distinction based solely on sex with reference to persons who may purchase liquor and the common council cannot do so. Any reason or justification for class distinction based on sex alone falls entirely when the evil of the intermingling of the sexes under recognized dangerous conditions does not form the basis.

A motion for a new trial in the case of George Palmer vs. Carroll L. Smith was denied. An appeal from the county court's construction of the will in the estate of Margaret High was taken up this afternoon.

OLD RESIDENT OF EDGERTON PASSED AWAY LAST SATURDAY

Daniel Harrington, Well Known Resident of Edgerton and Prominent G. A. R. Man, Called by Death.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.) Edgerton, Dec. 5.—Daniel Harrington, for the past twenty-nine years a resident of Edgerton, died at his home on Broadway street Saturday night at 10:45. For thirty years or more he was a sufferer with stomach trouble and about two weeks previous to his death the ailment became serious. "Uncle Dan," as he was familiarly known, was born in County Cork, Ireland, October 12, 1828. When 16 years of age he came to America and after a stay of several years he returned to his native country. Returning again to America he enrolled under the union flag in 1862, serving three years, at the expiration of which he re-enlisted and served another like term. At the expiration of the sixth year he came to Wisconsin, settling in Harbison. In 1879 he was married to Mary Durbin at that place. Two years later they came to Edgerton, which place has since been their home.

Besides the widow only two relatives survive: Rosa Harrington and Joe Harrington, niece and nephew, who for seventeen years past have made their home with the family. "Uncle Dan" was a member of H. S. Swift Post, G. A. R. The funeral services will be held Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock at St. Joseph's church, of which the deceased was a member, and to be conducted by Rev. J. E. Harlin.

Gray Versus Brown Camels.

The length of a stage varies throughout Persia, depending on the character of the country, and is reckoned in farsaks, the old Greek paces. The far-sake is a most elastic and uncertain measure, and as animals are paid for per farsak as many as the credulity of the traveler will allow are crowded into each stage. "How far," I once asked an old Kurdish muleteer, "is a farsak?" "As far as one can distinguish a gray from a brown camel," was the discreet answer. They averaged about four miles and the stage about six farsaks, or twenty-five miles. —Atlantic.

Harrisville, Pa., Dec. 5.—From his pulpit in the First Presbyterian church of Harrisville Rev. W. L. Barrett made a complete retraction of statements made from the same pulpit on September 23 last regarding John K. Tenor, who was then a candidate for governor and who has since been elected.

Mr. Barrett's first assertion was that Mr. Tenor was addicted to strong drink, that he had been seen under the influence of liquor in times past. For this statement Governor-Elect Tenor had Mr. Barrett arrested on a charge of criminal libel. Mr. Barrett declared he had been misinformed.

PLEADS FOR PEARY IN ANNUAL REPORT

SECRETARY MEYER SUGGESTS EXPLORER BE RETIRED AS REAR ADMIRAL.

ANNUAL REPORT SHOWS CUT

Estimates for 1912 Will Save $500,000—Eight Navy Yards May Be Abandoned—$25,000 Is Asked for Aviation Experiments.

Washington, Dec. 5.—Secretary of Navy Meyer in his annual report to congress suggests that Robert E. Peary be retired as rear admiral with pay from the day he discovered the north pole.

The secretary's recommendation, which also contains a reduced estimate for navy demands for the fiscal year 1912, follows:

"It is fitting that the government should recognize the value of his services and their successful termination. If it meets with your approval, I recommend that Peary, the discoverer of the north pole, be given a commission by legislation as rear admiral of the corps of civil engineers of the navy, to date from April 6, 1909, the date of his discovery of the pole, and that he be retired as of that date with highest retired pay of that grade."

Asks Aviation Appropriation.

In turn recognizing the practical benefits of marine aviation in referring to the mid-ocean feat of Eugene Bly, the secretary asks for an appropriation of $25,000 to continue such experiments.

In referring to the success of Bly's flight from the cruiser Birmingham to the land, the secretary says it appears to be practicable also for an aeroplane to board a ship.

The estimates of the secretary for the fiscal year 1912, which show a saving of $5,000,000 as compared with the appropriations for the navy department for the current year, provide for an expenditure of $3,135,827 for public works at the navy yards and stations.

The original recommendation made to the secretary for these works was for $28,621,530, but in the interest of economy Mr. Meyer was able to make the reduction, holding the figures to matters entirely within the range of importance or necessity.

Need $500,000 More for Collier.

The secretary says to construct the collier which congress directed built on the Pacific coast congress must increase the limit from $1,000,000 to $1,500,000.

The secretary asks $7,620,000 for provisions for the navy, an increase of $158,820 over the appropriation for the current year. As the fiscal year appropriation for the new vessels which the secretary recommends he names $6,000,000 for construction and machinery and $6,760,428 for armor and armament, which is $3,494,194 less than the amount appropriated for the new building program this year.

Sum Demanded Is $127,067,329.

The total amount which will be submitted to congress for the navy department for next year, will be $127,067,329, as compared with $122,378,880 for this year, or a decrease of $5,111,651.

Secretary Meyer recommends disposing of the naval stations at New Orleans, Pensacola, San Juan, Port Royal, New London, Sackett's Harbor, Calhoun and Cavite. The average yearly cost of maintaining these stations is $1,472,076, while very little useful work has been performed therein. He points out the United States has twice as many navy yards as Great Britain, with a navy at least double the size of ours.

AGED WOMAN FOUND MURDERED

Police Believe Emily Williams Was Robbed of $80,000.

New York, Dec. 5.—The discovery at New Milford, Conn., of the badly mutilated body of Emily Williams, seventy years old, in her apartments in Grove street, has led the police of that town to believe that the woman was robbed of her entire fortune of about $80,000 and then murdered.

An army of rats had been gnawing at her body for about three days. Mrs. Williams was well-to-do in her own right when her sister died six years ago and left her about $10,000. She kept this money, together with many thousands in bonds and stocks, in her house.

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 5.—Gov. Elect Simon E. Baldwin will not attend the banquet of the New Haven Chamber of Commerce at which Colonel Roosevelt will be the guest of honor.

Mr. Baldwin and Colonel Roosevelt were to deliver the only speeches. This leaves Colonel Roosevelt as the only speaker.

Mr. Baldwin was one of the men whom Colonel Roosevelt bitterly attacked in addresses during the recent elections.

RUSHING REPAIRS ON ALL
BAD ORDER FREIGHT CARS

Orders Received At Local Yards To Hire Men Necessary and Get Cars Ready For Road Service.

Orders have been received in the car department at the new yards to rush all repair work on bad order freight cars standing on the repair track and to hire additional men if necessary to do the work quickly. A short time ago the repair track was filled with cars not fit for road service and others were standing on the tracks which had been marked bad order. The force at that time was shortened and it seemed that the men had a huge task before them. Since however, men have been added to the crew, one new man today, and the number has been quickly increased. Most of the cars were foreign and it was necessary to get these out at once giving them the preference over the cars of the company.

POLICEMAN SLAIN BY SHERIFF.
Murder Follows an Altercation at Cairo, Ill., Headquarters.

Cairo, Ill., Dec. 5.—Night Sergeant Wilfred French was shot and instantly killed in police headquarters by Sheriff Ab Bankston of Pulaski county.

The sheriff, who had been arrested again and again for making trouble while under the influence of liquor, fired three shots at the officer, the only one which hit him entering his back and piercing his heart. French fell to the floor dead. Officer Paul, who was standing near when the trouble occurred, knocked Bankston's hand so that the other shots went wild. He then knocked the Pulaski county sheriff down and overpowered him.

As the news spread over the city an excited crowd gathered at headquarters. As a precaution against trouble Bankston was taken out of town.

Bankston was elected sheriff four years ago.

In parts of central and western Kansas a drought of three months was broken by rain. Later the drizzle which had been falling turned to snow. Over most of this territory the mercury is falling.

St. Louis, Dec. 5.—St. Louis and territory adjacent were visited by the first snowstorm of the season. Reports from eastern Missouri and southern Illinois points indicate the storm is general throughout this section. The temperature is falling.

A woman's sphere is first to be a mother—second to be a good mother. After that she can be a doctor, lawyer, carpenter, society leader or suffragette. But if she isn't a mother first, in a hundred years from now there won't be any women left to have any spheres.—The Spendthrift.

Government's Expenses Abroad.

In Brussels there is an international bureau for the publication of customs tariffs, and the United States pays $1,388 annually as its proportionate share of the expense. More expensive still is the annual membership fee of the United States in another institution with headquarters in Brussels. Every year $2,270 is paid by this government as a contribution to the maintenance of the international bureau of weights and measures.

THE WOMAN QUESTION.

The Illinois Association opposed to woman suffrage, is sending out to the press of the country a little pamphlet on "The Position of Women in the Socialistic Utopia," and a leaflet on "Socialism and Sex," both written by Mrs. Caroline F. Corbin.

This pamphlet is a condensed history of the dangerous doctrine, just now so popular, giving its aims and purposes, and showing that it is responsible for the frenzy of woman suffrage which has attacked some of the nations of the old world, exciting
more or less interest in America.

The leaflet outlines the dangers and appeals to women to preserve the sanctity of the home. These articles are too long to be reproduced, but they should be read by every woman in the land. They are issued by the American Association Opposed to Woman's Suffrage, 397 Dearborn Ave., Chicago.

After going through the problem exhausting and showing its dangerous fallacies, Mrs. Corbin concludes that:

"Of all the problems to be solved scarcely one is more fundamental than that which is popularly known as the Woman Question. During the past century great changes have been going on in the status of women. Civilization has been exciting her in point of privilege, socialism has been exciting her in point of power, and she is struggling which is to prevail."
"The 'free wife' of Socialism assumes no responsibilities with marriage, recognizes no motive in it but pleasure. She changes her mates if she chooses, as often as she changes

her gowns. She votes, pays taxes, legislates, and pursues an independent career, unhampered by nursery cares, or the duty of training those children which nature, with a grim irony, still insists that this lofty, independent creature shall bear. A parental state which assumes all the other functions of maternity, unfortunately, cannot relieve her of that office. In this, the real crux of the whole matter of emancipation, it is laughably powerless.

"Over against this product of modern economic reform, stands the old fashioned woman, the wife and mother of the home. She accepts marriage with its outcome of maternity,
as a lifelong responsibility, and adjusts her whole life to it, with some-dim unuttered sense that the greatest of all earthly undertakings, namely, the continuance of the forces of civilization, is committed to her care. To bear children and rear them to good citizenship is her mission. It is a task that will tax her utmost strength. It makes that unremitting physical toil which the labor market demands, impossible to her.

"Long absences from home, and absorption in pursuits alien to it, ruin her career as woman. Justice therefore requires that she should be protected and supported, and civilization and nature have alike decreed that this should be the task of the father of her children. To him, therefore, who cheerfully resigns those civic rights which belong to the united family, that she may the more freely give herself to the ceaseless care, the three-less vigils which her vocation requires of her, as the mother of the race. In her quiet home life spiritual visions and intuitions come to her also, which fit her to be the inspirer of man to all good deeds, his helper in every emergency, and from the inner sanctuary of the home goes out the light of the true shekinah, illuminating with enlightenment the upward path of the race."

CHURCH ATTENDANCE.

A church census, recently taken in a New England town, showed that of the 129 male inhabitants, 17 attend church once a day, 19 others went occasionally, and the balance never darkened the door of a synagogue.
Not a very flattering showing, but western pastors may find some comfort in the thought that indifference to church attendance is not confined to the west. "Why people don't go to church," is still an unsolved problem.
The Milwaukee Journal in discussing the situation, says:

"A generation ago, no man could stay away from church in a little New England town and be considered respectable. What has made the change? They tell us:

"First, lack of parental authority requiring church attendance when these men were young; second, the Sunday newspaper, 'the non-church-goer's gospel'; third, the automobile race, which sends thousands whizzing to the country; fourth, Sunday visiting, which keeps both visitors and hosts at home.
"Possibly the investigation was conducted on too narrow lines. If instead of asking how many go to church the question had been how many are kindly men, loving their families and doing what they can to lighten the burdens of those who are weary and heavy-laden, these prominent citizens might have given a better account of themselves.

"The important question is not how much religion there is in the churches, compared with fifty years ago, but how much religion there is in the hearts and lives of men.

"There are good sermons even in Sunday newspapers, warm hearts even in automobiles, and plenty of sweetness and light that somehow rarely get inside a church.

"So cheer up, brethren!"

This is an easy way to dispose of the proposition and the reasons given are doubtless accountable for much of the indifference. The logic advanced is also plausible and very consoling to men who regard the church as an asylum for women and children, but the fact remains that whatever the nation possesses in the way of morality and rugged integrity is due to the church of the fathers.

Back of the moral man who has but little use for the church, is the Christian mother, who, next to the home, prized the sanctuary where she worshiped.

If for no other reason the church is entitled to moral as well as financial support because of the mothers and the generations yet to come.
The old blue laws may be antiquated and out of date, but they were infinitely better and more wholesome than the Sunday beer garden and music hall of today.

Personal liberty is a product of the old world, but the doctrine is so altering that it spreads like an epidemic.
It is one of the offsprings of socialism, just now striving so strenuously for a foothold on American soil.

Not the church, with all its fallacies, than a liberty which stands for license and in the final analysis means demoralization.

MRS. BAKER EDDY.

Mrs. Baker Eddy died at her home at Chestnut Hill, near Boston, Saturday night, December 4, in the 80th year of her life. Mrs. Eddy was born in the little town of Bow, New Hampshire, and at the age of 18 was married to a contractor by the name of Glover, who died a year later, and Mrs. Glover returned to the home of her parents.

In 1853 she was again married to Dr. Daniel Patterson, a dentist with some knowledge of medicine. Finding his new wife an invalid and being unable to help her, he placed her in the hands of Phineas P. Quimby, a mesmerist and hypnotist of Portland, Maine.

This was in 1855. Quimby was successful, and under his treatment Mrs.

Patterson was greatly benefited, and while the healer claimed nothing of Divine power, his patient regarded him as a mediator between herself and God.

In her case it was a matter of faith
on her part, and, to quote a friendly biographer, "she had come to Quimby prepared to find him a saint, who healed by virtue of his religious wisdom, and as soon as she met him she completed her mental picture, endowing him with her own faith. Thus the hypnotist had almost nothing to do.
Her faith returned upon her, flooding her with radiance, healing her of her pain. The modern mesmerist was astonished at the faith he believed himself to have evoked. It covered him with confusion to have her religious emotion engendered by years of suffering ascribable to him a spiritual nature which he knew he did not possess."

In 1873 Mrs. Patterson was divorced from Dr. Patterson and four years later was again married to Dr. A. C.
Eddy, a student of Christian Science and one of its first practitioners. Dr.
Eddy died in 1882, and it remained for his wife, Mrs. Baker Eddy, to develop the science which has grown from a handful, to 1,000,000 adherents, during the past thirty years.

Whatever may be thought of Christian Science the fact is generally recognized that its founder was a great woman whose life was devoted to a purpose. She was a teacher of righteousness and the faith which she inspired in her followers prompted to right thinking, right living, and a cheerful and optimistic view of life.
The following brief tribute from a friend expresses the sentiment of the church which she founded.

"Mrs. Eddy's whole teaching has been that of individual responsibility;
the responsibility of deeds more than words; the responsibility of right thinking, which means righteousness;
the responsibility of doing right; and the fact that to do this we must have that mind in us which was also in Jesus Christ."

"In proportion as Christian Scientists assume these responsibilities now they honor Mrs. Eddy. All her writings have directed us to follow principle, not personality, and as this is done the cause so wonderfully established by Mrs. Eddy will continue to grow until it draws all manner of men unto it."

"There can be no question of who is to succeed Mrs. Eddy. She can have no successor. Christian Scientists the world over universally regarded her as the discoverer and founder of the religion she taught, and there cannot be two founders of religion."

The world has lost the personality of a great moral leader, but it has gained an army of devoted followers, whose influence will perpetuate her memory.

Congress convenes tomorrow and the day will be devoted to the President's message, which is said to contain some 50,000 words. The recommendations of President Taft are of special interest at this time as the complexion of congress is peculiar, and a democratic House waiting for admission adds to the confusion. It is doubtful if much can be accomplished, during the short session, however anxious the President may be to do business.

The garment workers' strike in Chicago is likely to be settled to the satisfaction of all concerned, both sides claiming victory. This will be a good thing for the city, and especially for the army of unemployed, who are destitute on the edge of a long, hard winter.

THE POET PHILOSOPHER
By WALT MASON.

(Copyright, 1909, by George Matthew Adams.)

My feet are broad and flat and large, and either shoe might be a bun. My feet are always in my way;
I stumble over them every day; and all the people that I meet are overlooking at my feet;

USEFUL FEET I've heard them saying, as they passed, that Cinderella is outclassed. I gaze upon my tribby wide, and oft my bosom swells with pride, for though they look like hods of bricks, I've trained them to some useful tricks. If there's a sleek man needing aid, those feet will give a street parade, and hasten to his humble door, that I may do some helpful chore. If there's a neighbor plunged in war, those blamed old tribby seem to know, and they go screeching down the road, that I may ease that neighbor's load. If there's a sane and helpful plan to benefit the creature man, those feet are straining in their shoes, and not a minute will they lose; they carry me in haste away, that I may butt into the fray. If earnest men, with weapon strong, are battling with some grievous wrong, those tribby fairly pay the ground, as though they heard the martial sound, and bear me to the scene of strife, that I may fight as for my life. Some people hand me large bouquets and praise me forty-seven ways, but I'm an idle, trifling skate, content to go a careless gait, who shies at care and toil and sweat—
my feet deserve the praise I get!

Dainty Laces

Carefully Cleaned
Ordinarily, people fear to send their soiled laces to cleaners. So rare and beautiful laces remain unused and uncleaned. One can hardly blame them for not wanting to send them to some cleaners.

We base these facts on what our customers have told us. So we set to work to perfect a method to skilfully clean lace. And we succeeded. We ask you to find out for yourself by giving us a trial order.

Alaska's Wealth of Coal.

In coal resources Alaska stands supreme along the entire Pacific coast. There is, indeed, plenty of coal in the state of Washington, and Vancouver Island has probably more coal under it than ever had England, but for a high-class anthracite or bituminous coal the present and future generations of the Pacific coast must turn to Alaska, as that is the only place it exists. The high grade, smokeless coal so essential for the Pacific squadron of our navy exists only in Alaska.—Columbian.

Curious Oath.

In the second oath administered to a man about to take his seat in the supreme court of the United States he swears among other things, "to do equal right to the poor and to the rich." It has been in the oaths from the beginning of the government, and must have been fashioned for the express purpose of assuring the poor that they should have justice in the highest tribunal of the land. The terms used are good plain English and easily understood.

No Misunderstanding.

"I hear you have had a misunderstanding with your old political friends." "No," said Senator Sorghum, "the worst of it is the impossibility of misunderstanding. We have expressed our opinions of each other in terms so explicit as to be unmistakable."

And a Bold One.

He must be a mighty mean man who will tell a fat woman that she is "gaining flesh."—Exchange.

Mexican Carelessness.

In Mexico the loss of a limb to a railroad employee is of frequent occurrence. Neglected injuries to feet, legs and arms are the cause of many amputations which, perhaps in cooler climates, might have been avoided.

LETTERS TELL OF TRUE SITUATION

CHIHUAHUA THE STORM CENTER OF MEXICAN REVOLUTION.

AMERICANS IN NO DANGER

Fear That United States Will Step in Sent Army To Protect Foreign Interests the Safeguard.

So many conflicting reports have come from Mexico relative to the situation there that the following letters from Mrs. L. W. MacLean and her daughter, Miss Flora MacLean will be of much interest to their many friends in Chihuahua where she owns the Robinson House, but guests are scarce. Miss MacLean writing that but two were in the hotel on Sunday the 20th of November. Train service is out of and telegraph wires down.

It has been several years since Mrs. MacLean has visited in Janesville, but her daughter, Miss Flora attended Milwaukee however two years ago and has visited her grand mother, Mrs. Thomas King and other relatives in Janesville more recently.

In recounting of the situation at Chihuahua, Mexico, Mrs. L. W. MacLean writes her mother, Mrs. Thomas King, of this city as follows: "Will write a few lines while there is a chance for my letter to go. We are cut off from railroads and telegraph west of us and they say today (Nov. 27) we will have no trains from El Paso after tonight. We are in the midst of great excitement but no danger.

"The revolutionists have been fighting all around us but until this morning they have not been near the city. Now they are fighting out near the dam, about three miles away. The revolutionists started to come into town about six o'clock and the soldiers were sent out to drive them back and the fighting began. We can see it plainly from the top of the hotel.

"There is no danger here whatever for the Americans as both the soldiers and the revolutionists have been warned not to molest Americans or any foreigners or injure their property. They are too much afraid of having the United States army come in here, they know if they should come they would be swept from the face of the earth in no time. I really believe there will be serious trouble here before it is all over. This is the capital of the state and many are the ones who live here and they are the ones the revolutionists are after.

"Chihuahua is the worst looking city you ever saw. Windows all over town are boarded up and the banks and principal stores have their great steel shutters pulled down and business is closed everywhere. Every one that could have gone to the states and it really looks dead, no one goes out at all.

"What something would happen, one way or the other. It will put things back twenty years in this country. We are perfectly safe and the government is bound to protect us."

In a letter written Monday, November 21, Miss Flora MacLean writes: "Everything in Chihuahua is all mixed up. All the young men and some of the Americans have been asked to volunteer and they have been armed and ready to fight. For days the revolutionists have been marching in and they have Chihuahua surrounded now. All the soldiers here have been sent away to other places and there are only about two hundred left.

"They say the revolutionists are going to march on the city tonight. They are only going to take the government buildings and banks. The people here will fight and I expect there will be a battle and lots killed. Everyone was advised to lay in a supply of groceries and things like that. All the towns around here have been captured and all the telegraph wires are cut.

"They will not dare to touch Americans though except those fighting for the government. The Governor here gave up his office today and the city is under martial law. No one can buy a gun down town for love or money. The battle which Miss MacLean expected evidently did not take place until later and then as far as we can learn the revolutionists did not capture Chihuahua as expected.

Shrinkage in the Traction Tribute

City's Share of License Fees of Inter-urban and Street Ry. Cos. a Tribute Less Than in 1909.

City Treasurer James Patters has received from State Treasurer Andrew H. Dahl drafts for $253.31 and $450.82, representing Janesville's 85 per cent share of the license fees paid for the current year by the Janesville Traction company and the Rockford and Interurban company. The tax is 2 1/2 per cent on the gross receipts and in the case of the Interurban company it is divided on the basis of mileage of track within the city limits. Last year the drafts were for $253.50 and $453.03 respectively.

An old man peddling pamphlets in lower Broadway while he sang "Way Down in the Old Con Field" attracted a crowd and held it in spite of a fire engine that dashed by at the time. There was nothing unusual in the old man's appearance, so it must have been the song. It is old in North Carolina.—New York Times.

Provisional and Democratic at the last session—and it is the general opinion that the readiness time will be little more than sufficient for careful consideration of the appropriation bills, especially as the administration's demand for economy in expenditure is to be met as far as possible.

There is plenty of work at hand, if Congress chooses to take it up. The committees are organized and overwhelmed with bills, if they care to report any new measures. In the Senate the unfinished business is the ship subsidy bill. It has the right of way until it is decided to sidetrack it for something else.

Just the Senate calendar, though, will not be loaded down as are those of the House. There are 104 bills on the calendar of the committee of the whole; 67 on the "House calendar"; 138 on the private calendar and 5 on the calendar for unanimous consent; while there are about 40 motions pending to discharge committees from consideration of bills not yet reported.

BOY BANKER LEAVES; DUPES OUT $300,000

Prominent Boston Financier Ate Mourning the Disappearance of Robert E. Davis.

Boston, Dec. 5.—Robert E. Davis, known in the financial district as "the boy banker," has disappeared and many prominent men mourn that fact. Davis was twenty-three years old and was regarded as one of the most successful men of affairs on State street where he had his office.

Between $300,000 and $500,000 are said to be the losses of those with whom he did business, but the only specific charge against him so far is the larceny of stock certificates valued at $10,000 from Hannah L. Greenwood of 800 Broad street, Somerville.

To answer the charge he is being sought by the police.

The career of young Davis has been spectacular. He began as clerk for a real estate concern at Hyde Park, and when eighteen years old he was a high salaried employee of Wiggin & Elwell, brokers. Among those who trusted him and lost by him is William L. Jackson. Davis is said to have lost $100,000 from him.

Davis is said to be in Mexico and steps will be taken at once to bring about his arrest and extradition.

WENDLING GIVEN LIFE TERM.

Jury Finds Louisville Man Guilty of Killing Alma Kellner.

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 5.—Joseph Wendling was found guilty by a jury of the murder of eight-year-old Alma Kellner and his punishment fixed at life imprisonment.

"I either killed the little girl or I didn't," said Wendling. "They should either send me to the electric chair or let me free."

The evidence presented against Wendling was purely circumstantial. Since his arrest and throughout his trial he denied any knowledge or the fate of the Kellner child.

Witnesses testified, however, that Wendling, then janitor at St. John's Catholic church, was seen in the office on the morning Alma Kellner went there to mass on December 8, 1909. The child was never seen again and months later charred parts of her body were found beneath the church music room.

RAIN THREATENS ALL FRANCE.

Practically Every Stream in the Country is Out of Its Banks.

Paris, Dec. 5.—Torrential downpours continued throughout France and the flood situation hourly grew more serious. Practically every stream in the country is out of its banks. Hundreds of villages are being surrounded by the waters and are being provisioned by soldiers with boats. Immense damage has been caused in the valley of the Loire by the breaking of the dike near Nantes. The water flooded farms and villages. The floods also invaded the lower quarters of Nantes. The Rhone is again rising at the rate of two inches an hour, overflowing its banks and driving the people of the neighborhood to the hills.

MAJ. GEN. MERRITT DIES AT NATURAL BRIDGE, VA.

Retired Army Officer, Distinguished in Three Wars, Passes Away—Once Governor of Philippines.

Washington, Dec. 5.—Major Gen. Wesley Merritt, U. S. A., retired, Civil war veteran, Indian fighter and one of the three federal commissioners who arranged terms of peace at Appomattox at the close of the Civil war, died suddenly at Natural Bridge, Va. It was announced at the war department that pursuant to the last request of General Merritt, the body will be interred on the military academy reservation at West Point. The entire strength of the cadets there will act as escort to the grave.

General Merritt's service in the United States army was an uninterrupted one. His promotion was gradual and in recognition of fine qualities as a soldier and gentleman.

General Merritt was born in New York June 16, 1833, but grew to manhood in Illinois, and received his appointment to the military academy at West Point from that state in 1855. He served throughout the Civil war with great distinction, being brevetted in various grades for gallantry in the battles of Gettysburg, Yellow Tavern, Haws's Shop, Va.; Five Forks, Winchester and Fisher's Hill, Va. He also received brevet commissions for gallantry during the campaign ending with the surrender of the confederate army of north Virginia.

In the conflicts with the Sioux Indians that followed, in the Spanish war and in the Philippine disturbances General Merritt won fame. As an Indian fighter he ranked with General Crook, under whom he served. While the guns of Admiral Dewey's ships shelled the forts at Manila, to the south of Manila, General Merritt held command of the land forces and entered the city when the Spanish capitulated at the close of the action. He was military governor of the Philippine island in 1898.

FIRST POLL PLEASES LIBERALS.

London and Manchester Trend Expected to Help Coming Contests.

London, Dec. 5.—Although the pollings in the general election Saturday indicate that the next parliament will be similar in complexion to that of the dissolved house, and both sides today profess to be pleased with the result of the first day's contests, a careful analysis of the figures in the political clubs appeared to give great satisfaction to the Liberals, who declare themselves more than contented. They point out that every Unionist majority in Birmingham was reduced and that the Liberals improved their position in Wolverhampton and other midland districts devoted to manufacturing interests and under Chamberlain influences.

London again proved disappointing to the Unionists and encouraging to the Liberals, who had not expected to regain Peckham. The London boroughs, like Birmingham, also show increased majorities for the Liberals, who anticipate that their successes in Manchester and London will greatly influence the coming contests.

On the other hand, the Unionists are able to cite significant victories, while they improved their position in a larger number of constituencies than the Liberals did.

The struggle between the Redmondites and the O'Brienites will be bitter.

The Better Part.

Pompano—"Why do you work so hard, Ingley? You slave from morning until night." Ingley—"I know I do. I wish to get rich. I want to die worth a million." Pompano—"Well, there's no accounting for tastes. Now, I would much prefer to live worth half a million."

The Ticklemouse

—and his Sleepyland Adventures
By Roy Rutherford Bailey with Davy and Dorfy

The Shining House

It was fall house-cleaning time, and Davy and Dorfy had been busy all day helping the cleaning ladies. At last, they called it helping, though they noticed their mother smiled every time they spoke of it. When night came they were tired enough to sleep all morning—and they would have, but for the merry mice.

Not that they were tickled awake—Oh, no! No soft little paw teased their pink toes into wakefulness, though Dorfy left hers sticking out so she wouldn't miss her friends' call, she was so sleepy.

But along in the middle of the night both twins woke at once—feeling the merry mice were somewhere in the house wishing for them. And they popped out of bed and began to look around.

No, not in the nursery—that was about the only room in the house that hadn't a freshly varnished floor. "Let's look down the hall," whispered Davy, remembering the adventure of the Red Lane. Into the hall they tiptoed. Sure enough, their friends the mice were there—but not the merry mice tonight! The Ticklemouse had slipped and fallen headlong, when he struck the fresh, sticky varnish; and how comical he did, look! His whiskers were stuck together, his shiny silk hat was stuck fast in the middle of the floor, and his long coat tails couldn't have been anchored better if they'd been glued. Willy, luckily, had smelled the fresh paint and varnish before he jumped Taft—would have pounced on them in the morning.

"Hooryay!" squealed Willy Ticklemouse under his breath. "The Sleepyland Twins to the rescue. Pry us loose, quick!" The twins pried them loose and helped get some of the sticky varnish off.

"And now," muttered the Ticklemouse, "let's go and rescue Snix."

"Snix?" The name was new to Davy and Dorfy.

"Cousin Snix," explained Willy, "is the Laughingmouse. He's a good fellow, too, till he gets to snickering—that usually stops the game. He's in that glass cage now—say, what has happened to your house, children? It shines like a darky boy's heel!"

Down the hall of the shining house the twins led their friends, keeping carefully in the unvarnished path in the middle. Straight to the kitchen Willy led them, and pointed a shaking paw to the glass-sided machine Mr. Dover had brought home that very morning to try a brand new vacuum cleaner. And inside its shining walls, rocking back and forth and chuckling as if it were the joke of his life, a rolypoly little prisoner was smiling out at them. It was Snix, the Laughingmouse!

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

AN INTERESTING, and I think fairly novel method of collecting money for any charity, came to my attention the other day.

Let me tell you about it, in case you are interested in any charitable enterprise and are weary of the stale old methods of reaching people's pockets.

A committee of the people most vitally interested is chosen. These people are named "years." These "years" must each give one dollar each and find twelve people to act as "months."

The "months" must each give fifty cents and find four people to act as "weeks."

The "weeks" must each give twenty-five cents and find seven people to act as "days."

This will make a casing for the cord, which should be run in through the buttonholes and tied in a fancy knot. Make the lining separate and to be the same size when finished.

CHEERED BY A. F. L. MAUDE YOUNGER, WHO PLEADS FOR BALLOT TO PROTECT SEX INDUSTRIALLY.

St. Louis, Mo.—Among the numerous women delegates to the convention of A. F. L. was Miss Maude Younger of San Francisco. She won the convention by her clever address, in which she declared "women should be able to vote in order to protect their own sex industrially."

Miss Younger is connected with the San Francisco wage surrogates movement.

Miss Younger was presented to the convention by President Campers after he had completed the reading of his annual report, and her appearance on the platform was the signal for enthusiasm.

Male wage earners have two methods of improving their condition," she said, "by unionizing and by ballot. Women wage earners have but the one means—by forming a union. Women go out of the home for work because they have to, not because they want to. They should therefore be protected with every weapon, including the ballot. Women are hard to unionize because all of them have their eyes on matrimony as an escape from toil."

Eggplant Recipes.

Fried Eggplant.—Take two young eggplants, slice thin and even and lay them in milk which you have seasoned with salt and pepper to taste; then dip each slice in flour, coating lightly, and fry in enough hot fat to float the slices.

Stuffed Eggplant.—Choose four young, rather small eggplants, wipe with a damp cloth, cut in halves and scoop out all but a thin layer of the flesh adhering to the skin. Sprinkle the inside of the shells with salt and stand them, inverted, on a platter to drain. Meanwhile prepare the filling: meat quite fine; mix with three small onions minced fine and browned in butter. Cook until the moisture is well cooked out; then add a little minced parsley and a dozen button mushrooms chopped fine; then add an equal quantity of soft breadcrumbs, season to taste with salt and pepper, remove from the fire and add the beaten yolks of two or three eggs. The filling should be moist, but not too soft. Fill the shells and cover with buttered breadcrumbs and place in a hot oven to brown the crumbs nicely. Serve as soon as done.

Eggplant Steamed and Fried.—If the eggplant is well grown and a little old steam it first or parboil it in its skin, drain and cool. Then cut in slices an inch thick. Soak the slices in salt water two hours, drain, dip in egg and fine dry breadcrumbs and fry in deep, hot fat until a nice brown.

Eggplant With Scrambled Eggs and Tomatoes.—Sauté or broil slices of tender young eggplant; arrange on a hot platter and cover each slice with scrambled eggs and tomato pulp chopped fine. A few strips of sweet green pepper scalded for five minutes, drained and stirred into the scrambled egg and tomato add an attractive touch of color as well as flavor.

Broiled Eggplant.—Pare the eggplant if large and cut in slices a quarter of an inch thick. Dust the slices with salt and pepper and broil them with melted butter or oil. Place in a fine wire broiler and broil over a clean fire until a nice brown on both sides. It will take about three minutes for each slice. These may be served for a breakfast dish with garnish of crisp brown bacon chips or for luncheon with cold tomato catchup or sliced tomatoes.

The Partitions of Poland.
There have been three partitions of Poland. The first was in 1772, when Prussia took the palatinates of Malbork, Pomerania and Warminia, a part of Cuiavia and a part of Great Poland. Austria took Lodz, Sandomir and Cracow, and Russia took White Russia, with all the part beyond the Dnieper. The second partition was in 1793, by which Prussia acquired the remainder of Great and a portion of Little Poland, and the Russian boundary was advanced to the center of Lithuania and Volhynia. In the third and final partition, in 1795, Austria had Cracow, with the country between the Pilica and the Vistula. Prussia had the capital, with the territory as far as the Silesian, while the rest went to Russia. —New York American.

A Dramatic Author.
Like most actor managers, Macready was pestered by would-be dramatic authors. An ambitious young fellow brought him a five act tragedy one morning to Drury Lane.

"My piece," modestly explained the author, "is a chef d'oeuvre. I will answer for its success, for I have consulted the sanguinary taste of the public. My tragedy is so tragic that all the characters are killed off at the end of the third act."

"With whom, then," asked the manager, "do you carry on the action of the last two acts?"

"With the ghosts of those who died in the third!"—Cornhill Magazine.

Bishop's Love for Little Ones.
I love children and their society and I would stand on my head for them if it would do them any good.—Bishop of Chichester.

One of Life's Sweetest Things.

REDUCING WEIGHT.

Now is the best time to reduce the weight, if one is above normal. Ten per cent. variation from normal indicates an abnormal habit of nutrition that should not be neglected. Exercise, deep breathing, and mental activity are as necessary as diet. Walking is the best exercise, beginning moderately and gradually increasing distance and speed. It is essential to maintain strength while the weight is being reduced. The diet should be changed gradually. An exclusive diet of wheat, simmered instead of cooked, is sufficient in many cases. In extreme cases, the following is advised: Breakfast—uncooked cabbage and apple, pineapple or lettuce; dinner—bananas and cream, raisins and walnuts, olives, olive oil; supper—prunes, raisins, figs, peaches, olive oil. Quantity and combination will depend upon circumstances.

ANSWER

One—the flat, sad, sickly looking one—was baked with poor baking powder; possibly the high-priced kind—possibly the cheap, big can kind. It denotes a lack of leavening gas, or an uneven distribution of same—or both. The other—the large, light, fluffy one—was prepared with Calumet Baking Powder, and denotes the never-failing, delicious baking that always results from its use.

Calumet does not cost as much as the high price baking powder, but it is very much superior in every way—it is purer—more reliable—more healthful. Here are the reasons:

All baking powders undergo a chemical change in the process of baking. You do not take it into the stomach in the same form as it is in the can. For example: When you use Cream of Tartar Baking Powder you get Rochelle Salts in your food, because the Cream of Tartar during this reaction turns into Rochelle Salts. This, as you know, is a drug, and should be taken only under doctor's orders.

Calumet is so carefully and scientifically prepared that the neutralization of the ingredients is absolutely perfect.

That it is absolutely pure and of highest quality is proven by the fact that

LIVE A CHAIN.
Has it ever occurred to you that life is a great chain extending from one eternity to another? Have you ever thought that the character of that chain depends exactly what you make it? It is a result of your own work. Just as the maker of every other kind of a chain goes about his work to make it as strong and serviceable and as ornamental, as compatible with utility, as must you go about your work.

Of course, you have many times heard that "a chain is only as strong as its weakest link." And that is true. Have you ever thought of this weak link in relation to your own life? The weak link in the chain for most of our lives is some bad habit or poor trait of character, usually some little annoying fault.

A small, frequent habit is sufficient to hold us back from the real purpose of our lives—from accomplishing its to whom each should be delivered. The uncertainty and suspense will delight the children, who love nothing better than to have their curiosity piqued to the highest pitch. Rings never come unless as gifts. One of the most useful is a corset bag made long enough to hold the new style corsets. To make one will require 24 inches of pompadour braided for the bag, with the same amount of wash silk for lining and one yard of medium silk cord. A strip of brocade 16 inches wide should be sewed up. Three and a half inches from the top work

ELKS EULOGIZED THEIR DEPARTED

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT ANNUAL MEMORIAL SERVICES.

DR. DAVID BEATON SPOKE

Victor P. Richardson Offered a Beautiful Tribute—Music by Baptist Orchestra and Lotus Quartette.

Before an audience which filled every available seat on the main floor of the Myers theatre, the Janesville Elks-Lodge No. 254, I. O. O. F., held their impressive memorial service yesterday afternoon. Elks-Lodge Ruler Thomas E. Walsh and associate officers read the beautiful ritual and responses and Rev. David Beaton offered the invocation as the whole lodge, standing, gave the sign of grief. Selections appropriate to the hour were rendered by the Baptist church stringed orchestra and the Lotus Male quartette.

The Honored Dead.
The names of the honored dead appearing on the great frame in the center of the stage were: Fred J. Promtke, 1894; Dr. Henry Palmer, 1895; Leod H. Becker, 1895; James E. Brownell, 1896; Stanley B. Smith, 1897; Frank C. Cook and A. L. McOmber, 1897; Fred W. Vandewater, 1898; George H. Sale, M. G. Curtis, and J. M. Hostwick, 1899; and C. Elmer Skelly, 1910. And to the late W. H. Greenman who had been a member of Janesville lodge prior to his removal to Deloit some months before his death, Victor P. Richardson addressed his closing tribute.

Eulogy by V. P. Richardson.
Mr. Richardson dwelt briefly on the spirit of fraternity, drawing for his theme vivid and striking contrasts and word pictures from the pages of history. It had been brought forth by that exquisite flower of human liberty, sprung from the rock and harbor, an emblem of the human revolution. But it had flourished most far from its native soil—in America—where it had swept away the artificial barriers of caste; where it had banished much of the mysticism of religion and substituted, therefore, a practical philanthropy; where it had even become the most powerful of all factors in the field of politics. And this broad spirit was the very essence of all societies such as the one which had gathered to hold its services for those who had passed away. All of those numbered among the departed had been known as worthy members. The last to go was Brother W. H. Greenman. "He had those broad, keen sympathies which drew men to him—those qualities of mind and heart which made him a delightful companion and a true friend. It is given to but few to be loved and mourned as he was—
"Oh friend, oh best of friends
Thy absence—
More than the unfolding night—
Darkens the landscape auri!"

Address by Dr. Beaton.
Dr. David Beaton, pastor of the First Congregational church, in a delightful exposition of the Golden Rule, found it exceedingly appropriate and worth while that in this era of haste and bustle days should be set apart for the commemoration of men who had done something worth while and had been loved by their fellows. Fellowship is the basis of the common ideal by which the men of any community are bound—the ideal of citizenship—the plan of human life. The individual passes but the something to which he contributes remains and it is the succession of men's common ideals and purposes that has the enduring form of eternal life. And that is why memorial services, if they be more than lip services, are of permanent value.

"The golden rule is more than a mere platitude or hackneyed expression. It means the recognition of the social equality of men and reciprocity. Man needs his fellow men. Without them he is imperfect. Without them his very virtue counts. It is only in the great choruses that we feel as if God were speaking in the voice of many waters. It is only when communities create a surplus of wealth that art may flourish—that some men may give their time to painting and sculpture because some men are enabled to buy them.

To heed the Golden Rule one must know and heed the social order. He cannot do this without thinking. It is necessary to conscientiously develop one's sympathies. No one lives for himself. Let him try, and he finds life stunted, barren, debased. Life is the expression of our own forces and interests as related to those of other men. All the best efforts of religions, all the best efforts of statesmen, all the best efforts of reformers are to carry out this idea.

To appreciate any person one must love him; sympathize with him. No idea is of any value until we enthuse over it. There is no virtue that does not imply loving someone. If any man says he loves God whom he has not seen, he will love the brother whom he has seen.

TROOPS REPULSED AT OPORTO.

Repeated Volleys Fail to Disperse Portuguese Railroad Strikers.

Oporto, Dec. 5.—Troops attacked riotous employees of the railroads, who are on strike, but were forced to retire after firing repeated volleys. There were several casualties. Large reinforcements are said to be now on the way to this city.

Lisbon, Dec. 5.—The Portuguese government is preparing a decree for the separation of the church and the state. This has resulted in collisions between republicans and clericals in various parts of the country.

Thought Dead; Child Lives.

New York, Dec. 5.—As the undertaker put out his hands to lift the body of three-year-old Lillian Vland to prepare her for burial, the child sat upright in her winding sheet and cried: "Mamma! I want my mamma, I'm cold!" A doctor said he believed the child's life had come back momentarily.

ADVICE REGARDING SENDING OF GIFTS

Post Office Department Tells Best Methods of Transmitting Christmas Gifts Brought Abroad.

As usual Brother Jonathan will take good care of the Christmas mail of foreign born citizens, but there are certain things that the senders must do and other things that they are advised to do if they want the home folks to receive their remembrances on Christmas day.

Merchandise of all kinds for foreign countries should be sent by parcels post, declares the post office department. Otherwise it must be prepaid at the letter rate of postage—5 cents for the first ounce and 3 cents for each additional ounce or fraction thereof—except to England, Ireland, Scotland, and Wales, when the rate is 2 cents for each ounce or fraction thereof.

To Germany, when sent by German steamers direct, the rate is 2 cents for each ounce or fraction thereof; via England or France, 5 cents for the first ounce and 3 cents for each additional ounce or fraction thereof.

All packages containing merchandise, when not sent by parcels post, not prepaid at letter rate of postage, are sent to the dead letter office.

Parcels post packages must not be posted in a letter box, but must be taken to the postoffice direct.

Always place your own name and address on the upper left hand corner of your letter or package.

Postcards decorated with floral or other designs are not allowed unless sent in sealed envelopes.

Don't wrap articles in newspapers unless you send them as above indicated.

If packages for Portugal, Uruguay, or Guatemala, do not attach non-postage or Christmas stamps or labels that resemble stamps. If they go to any other country, but not stamps on the back of the packages.

These suggestions heeded, the post office department promises that faults in transmission will be few indeed.

CLEVER ACTING BY PERFECT COMPANY

Louis Mann, in "The Cheater" Proved To Be An Exceptional Offering At Myers Theatre.

Janesville theatre goers who failed to witness the production of "The Cheater" with Louis Mann in the title role at the Myers theatre Saturday afternoon and evening, missed one of the best comedy productions that has been given in Janesville for many seasons. As Godfried Piltersdorf, the estate senator opposed the All Night sessions of New York, who becomes suddenly owner of the most notorious of these resorts, the Orpheum, with all the requirements of such a position thrust upon him, the complications that it brought about in his home and the final unwinding of the comedy, Louis Mann proved most acceptable.

The German dialect, together with the superb art of mimicry, which has characterized all his acting since the days of the Girl from Paris and the Telephone Girl, are unexcelled by any other actor on the stage today.

There is just enough of a plot to the play to keep the interest up and the support was such that no detail was lost sight of. Madame Catherine Piltersdorf's wife, Parke Patton as "My dear daughter and Emily Ann Wellman as Frieda Hallows, the maid, sustained their parts as excellently as the acting of Mr. Mann.

Nor should the work of Charles Holton, in the difficult role of Willy, the student of physics research and nephew of Piltersdorf be lost sight of. It was a well balanced company handling a clever farce in a most excellent manner. The story is simple, the situations complex and the final scene, where Mann returns home after a night of debauch at the Orpheum and in jail, was most clever. Of course it all ends well, but up to the drop of the curtain on the last act the interest of the audience is kept on edge and the funniness follow each other in such quick succession that one laughs before the last until they fairly over-

That more did not attend the production is to be regretted as Manager Myers is holding these excellent productions with difficulty, owing to the conditions of theatrical affairs, and lack of support on the part of theatre patrons mean fewer of the best productions in the future.

RETURN OF JEWS TO FORMER HOME

PALESTINE IS THE MECCA FOR THE WANDERING RACE.

FULFILLMENT OF PROPHECY

Restoration and Conversion of the Chosen People Was Subject of Rev. William's Sermon.

That the Jewish prophecies are being fulfilled regarding the return of the Jews to Palestine was the subject of Rev. T. D. Williams' sermon at the Methodist church last evening. The address was delivered under the auspices of the Bible Study Class and the subject in full was: "The Jews: Are the prophecies concerning their conversion and restoration to the Holy Land being fulfilled?"

Rev. Williams gave a short history of the Jewish race and their experiences as the chosen people of God. Throughout their wanderings and the vicissitudes of their history they had been marked for the chosen race, and although at times it may have seemed that providence and fortune were against them, the promises of their leaders and prophets over and over reassured them and gave them encouragement in the hour of stress and bondage. Many a poor race of slaves has told in chains in the country for which they later made the laws. Thus the experience of Joseph in Egypt was one of the first instances proving the superiority of the Jews over all the races of the Orient.

Reversal of fortune may come to races as well as to men. And so in the case of the Jews in spite of their many troubles and exiles, they managed to retain the assurance that they were God's chosen people. It has been said that the Greek stood for philosophy, the Roman for law, and the Jew for religion. And that such was the case is seen by the fact that the altars of Israel were kept burning through the centuries in preparation for the coming of the promised Messiah. And when He came, He came unto His Own and His own received Him not. He was descended from royal lineage and all the happenings of the advent season pointed to His coming, but when He came He was despised and He died on the cross under the maledictions of the race which was chosen to be honored by Him.

"But a stern and just retribution was coming to the Jew. An interchange of places occurred, and the hated, the persecuted, the crucified became the crucified, the crown of thorns was put on the Jewish race and they became the by-word among the nations. Unhappily, friendless and forsaken they were doomed to wander over the face of the earth. They were outlawed, reviled, legislated against, and denied all rights and privileges. The first laws made in France were against the Jews; Magna Carta contained a clause legalizing and against them; seven times they were expelled from France; in many countries Christians were prohibited to sell them the necessities of life; in Spain they were cruelly persecuted and exiled and throughout the world they were destroyed and suppressed. There was no term of privation that they did not experience and as a result it is estimated that two hundred years ago there were only three million Jews in existence.

"There is still a very marked prejudice against the Jew, but this prejudice is as cruel in its effects as it is unjust in its origin. And yet in spite of all the persecution and suffering the Jewish people have remained a nationality, the oldest on the face of the earth, and they are today as strong in the principle of political unity as was Sampson in muscular vigor.

"The Jew has also retained his physical and mental vigor and their agency of vitality is unequalled by any other people. Their birth-rate, at present, is greater, and their death-rate less than that of any other race. A French authority states that on the average they live eleven years longer than the average Gentile. And with this longer time for work is any wonder that they have excelled all peoples in any of the lines which they have chosen to enter? Their population at present numbers eight million, which is nearly triple of that two hundred years ago.

"But their nationality and family vigor are not their only boast of strength. They have been law-givers, statesmen, and financiers for nearly every nation in Christendom. Their influence has been felt in the realms of politics, art, science, philosophy, and they have given to the world its greatest moral code. All culture is saturated with the Jewish genius. Spanning a period of four thousand years with a beaten pathway of achievement the Jewish race are showing that they are marked by Divine Providence and are surely marching to a designed end in their eventual restoration.

"By restoration the Jews mean a fatherland whose prestige will be greater than in the days of Solomon. The focal center of nearly all the Jews is Palestine. Some few want to buy the island of Cyprus to prevent any trouble with the Turks and Christians, but Baron Rothschild in Paris voices the sentiment of the majority when he says that the Mecca for all the Jews is Palestine. For a time the Turkish Sultan disapproved of this movement on the part of the Jews, but the rights of the Jews have been gradually extended so that now they may own land in Palestine, and it is said that the Rothschilds have secured a mortgage on the promised Land through the heavy loans which they have advanced to the Turkish government. They are founding hospitals and schools and at present there are over 100,000 Jews in Palestine and a movement is on foot to re-build the temple.

"Their restoration is to prepare for their conversion. Rabbi Hirsch has made a definite statement in which he said, "We modern Jews will not be converted," but Saul of Tarsus would doubtless have said the same before his conversion. Many of the reformed Jews no longer look for the second coming of Christ but to a time when there will be liberty, equality and fraternity throughout the whole earth.

"The conversion of the Jews is the final key to the millennium. The happiness of the whole world is bound up in the regathering of this race. The final triumph of Christianity will be achieved when the Jew can read the inscription which was over the cross and realize that Jesus of Nazareth is truly King of the Jews."

Appreciation.
"They say Butterworth is going to erect a monument over the grave of his wife's first husband."

"An ordinary man would regard that as a waste of money, wouldn't he?"

"Perhaps, but you see he left enough life insurance to make it possible for Butterworth to get along without working for the rest of his life, and I suppose he feels that he ought in some way to publicly show his appreciation."

RESIDENTS OF MANY YEARS

Twenty-one Out of Population of 2,500 Are Octogenarians — One Woman Is Ninety.

Catawissa, Pa.—Catawissa's population is 2,500, and it is the place of places for persons who desire to live long. There are at least a hundred persons here who are more than sixty years of age, and of these twenty-one are more than eighty—a large proportion out of 2,500 people.

They are as follows: Hiram Ritter, eighty-one; Mrs. Hamilton Fisher, eighty-two; Jacob Stronach, eighty-two; Mrs. Anna Thomas, eighty; Miss Sarah Kistler, eighty-three; Samuel Klass, eighty-two; Benjamin Barndt, eighty-two; Mrs. Elizabeth Keatonbauer, eighty-three; George Gilbert, eighty-two; Stephen Pobe, eighty-four; Charles Hughes, eighty-nine; Mrs. Mary Little, ninety-three; Mrs. Margaret Whitner, eighty; William Brinbach, eighty; Mrs. Margaret Ludwig, eighty-three; Mrs. Jane Holden, eighty-three; Mrs. Sarah Krogh, eighty; Solomon D. Recover Valuable Brok.
Paw Paw, Mich.—A copy of the Women's "Life of Washington," which Abraham Lincoln read by the light of a tallow candle, has been recovered from a paper mill at Kalamazoo by 12 Salesburg of this place. Salesburg loaned the volume, worth $2,000, to Prof. J. O'Leary of the local schools and in some way it was placed among a pile of discarded books and papers and sold to a ragman. In the paper mill it was discovered by an employee sorting rags, who sold it to a Kalamazoo man for almost nothing. Salesburg recovered it from this man, paying him $50.

Bird Friend of Farmer.
Possibly the most useful bird to crops is the bob white, the common partridge. The agricultural reports of the southern states, especially Virginia, show that annually several hundred tons of pernicious weed seeds are destroyed by bob whites alone. It is figured that from September 1 to April 30 annually in Virginia alone the total consumption of weed seed by bob whites amounts to 573 tons.

When Leaving a Position.
Don't go either to the extreme of taking French leave or getting sentimental on the day of your exodus. The sentimental person is an embarrassing spectacle under all circumstances. Neither go through an effusive recital of gratitude to your chief because he has raised you a few times.

Just a little hint that you have appreciated his attitude and fairness, if such is really the case, is enough.

Under certain conditions you may ask for a service letter or credentials, but this is becoming less customary. Employers are putting less faith in such testimonials, as it must be verified anyhow.

"Oh, there's a girl in that story—actress in the theater, where I stepped—a real actress, mind you, a—fascinating from Fascinatorville. Why Lil so much as looked at me I don't know, but she did, I was near twice her age, and 'would have been playin' the game too low down to try and hook on to her, though I was tempted, she was so pretty, so good to me, I don't know what would 'a' been the upshot if the property man, who had his eye on the gal, hadn't got me the sack and Lil an engagement on the road. She and I drifted apart. I never wrote, though she asked me to. I know I was better not—for her. But you see why I'm nuts on the dog. He was hers, and Shakespeare was her name for him. She loves Shakespeare's plays, and her ambition was to act in 'em. But all that's something I wouldn't 'a' mentioned if you hadn't kind of earned the right to Shakespeare's history. I was tellin' you about my specialty and how Shakespeare introduced me to it. We was on our beam ends, Shakespeare and me, our ribs showin' through like silk. One mornin' after a night out like this, only a square downtown, I was circled around till I blew into Twelfth street and dropped my eyes on to a new restaurant with a good fried smelt, and an idea hit my brain like a hammer. In a walk and offers to swap it with the boss for a dinner. He wasn't takin' any just then, but I talked till I waked him up, showed him what I could do in the art line and began to work on the spot with a grand new thing in meenoes. I've been at it ever since, and, though the pay don't go up by leaps and bounds, the house has, and lots of the eaters say it's my work's made it what it is—brought in the public like a flock of sheep. I got two meals and three dimes a day out of the job, and I wouldn't be sleepin' in my country house tonight if I hadn't run across a guy who needed my money more than I did. I guess there ain't many swells have got a finer palace than this, though it's kind of drafty. Your castle across the pond ain't got a finer park, I bet."

Though it was nearly midnight when he emerged from behind the purple bed curtain of the sleeping park, there was no sign that less secluded quarters of the city thought of sleep.

In the glass sided palace of the Herald tomorrow morning's paper was visibly going to press. There was a churning rumble of huge printing machines, and from somewhere out of sight of the bronze owl's staring electric eyes sprang covered wagons loaded with "up state" editions, which must catch early trains. Newsboys were yelling extras, trying to howl each other down above the confused storm of sound, and as William Bill loved his conveyance into the square McGovern lifted her noble bronze arm to give the midnight signal. Her pair of obedient blacksmiths swung their hammers lustily and struck the bell twelve times.

Val and his companion were nearly the last in a long procession of applicants for newspaper hospitality, and for the first time in his life Lord Loveland found himself among the dregs of humanity, learning what it might be to suffer as they suffered, they who nestled in the children of the world's misery.

"They think you're some fly reporter takin' notes or a swell doin' the night sight," said Bill. "They don't like you much, but they won't bother you neither, only some chap may say, 'What queer things you see when you haven't got your gun.' If he does don't you take notice; that's all."

Loveland promised forbearance, but his patience was not tried, in his turn, which came when his nose had turned a pale blue with cold and the sick damps above his pumps were slowly congealing, he received a tin of hot coffee and a roll. Food and drink were so good and, as Bill said, "filled such a long felt want" that Val bolted them greedily, only to yearn for more when both were gone. But etiquette was strictly preserved in Herald square. No one asked for a second helping, and each applicant when he had drained his coffee to the last drop walked away without a word unless it were a "thank you."

"Now, he for the first hotel?" exclaimed Bill cheerfully. "It's a goodish step, but as for me after that grub I feel like I could do a sprint round the world."

Loveland was refreshed, too, and more than ever inclined to look on the experience as an adventure over which he would laugh tomorrow night. But he did not intend to forget Bill Willing when he forgot the troubles through which Bill was his pilot. He must do something for the poor chap, he said to himself, and gloved with hot coffee and a sense of warm generosity.

Shakespeare, who had shared his master's roll and lapped the last spoonful of coffee, was an incredibly small black animal of somewhat moth eaten texture, who in form rather resembled a grasshopper, but his gentle eyes, curiously like his master's, beamed with affection.

"We approach the castle doors, my lord," grandiloquently announced Bill, little guessing that his jesting way of address was that to which Loveland was accustomed from his inferiors.

Val started from the reverie in which he had been walking at the companion's side like a mechanical figure. He wanted to find himself in a brilliantly illuminated street like a tenth rate imitation of Broadway, lined with lighted shops, gaudy restaurants and strange houses of entertainment.

ENDS MISERY FROM INDIGESTION OR A SICK, SOUR, GASSY STOMACH

A Little Diaphepsin makes your out-of-order stomach feel fine in five minutes.

The question as to how long you are going to continue a sufferer from indigestion, dyspepsia or out-of-order stomach is merely a matter of how soon you begin taking some Diaphepsin. If your stomach is lacking in digestive power, why not help the stomach to do its work, not with drastic drugs, but a reinforcement of digestive agents, such as are naturally at work in the stomach.

People with weak stomachs should take a little Diaphepsin occasionally, and there will be no more indigestion, no feeling like a lump of lead in the

"This is the Bowerly," Bill mentioned with pride.

They passed a tall building whose front was plectoral with advertisements of wonders such as the world could not have survived had it seen them in the flesh.

"My old pitch," said Bill. "I painted the fat twins with their heads under their arms and the half zebra half camel. The fair one with golden locks, too, and the human bone are my shiny doovers. What do you think of 'em, chum?"

"Chum" was filled with respectful admiration of the artist's imagination, if not his technique, and he replied fervently that the shiny doovers in question were marvelous.

"Here's where I used to park," went on Bill with a sigh for past glories. "They'd ought to give us free passes for a look round, if you'd like, but the boss ain't built that way, and there's nothin' to see anyhow. The freaks ain't what they're painted—couldn't be for a dime."

Willing paused in front of a building which loomed up dingy and ill lighted in comparison with its gaudy neighbors. A lump over a low browed door drew sufficient attention to the announcement, printed in faded lettering, that this was "The Hat Hotel, For Gentlemen Only."

Bill Willing opened the door as if he were at home. "Come in, do," he said hospitably, and Loveland obeyed, to find himself standing directly at the foot of a long, dimly lit stairway, the steps of which were protected from the wear and tear of time and boots by strips of iron.

At the top was a closed door, and this open, Loveland was plunged into the life and movement of the Hat hotel, appropriately named for its night activities. Behind a grating which formed a small room stood the proprietor or manager of the establishment, ready to accept payment, allot beds, inscribe the names of new clients in a book and deal out keys of lockers or cubicles. This tiny office was cut out of a long, narrow room in which fifty or sixty men were sitting, glancing over the newspapers or writing a last letter before they went to bed. They were grouped at one of several long tables that ran down the length of the room or assembled round a huge iron stove whose fat body was almost red hot.

As Bill easily leaned his elbows on a narrow shelf in front of the office grating, explaining his errand to the manager, Loveland wished himself back in the park again, half drowned in perfumed moony vapor, but it was too late. He was "in for it" now, he said to himself as Bill with a certain pride announced that "his friend" wanted a room. "A bed for mibe," he went on pleasantly. "I'd be glad of it, if it's free. I always sleep mighty well in it."

Eighty-one was engaged, but Bill got another number to which he was accustomed, and then his friend's name was asked.

"Anything you like up to Edward VII, or down to J. Smith," whispered Mr. Willing as he moved away that Loveland might take his place at the grating.

Loveland hesitated for an instant and then gave the name of P. Gordon, one to which he had a right, among many others.

As Bill was competent to play host they were given their keys and allowed to find their own way to their quarters. Loveland's number was on the next floor, but Bill's cheaper lodging was higher up.

The cubicles were not numerous, for such accommodation do luxe was beyond the means, beyond even the ambition of a hundred out of the 100 underweight men whom the Hat hotel sheltered each night. The row (called "Fifth avenue" by those who could not afford to sleep there) was partitioned off from a long room the size of the reading room below, but here, instead of tables and benches running along the walls, were beds, many beds, placed at small, irregular distances from each other. A faint light revealed them and the straight dark shapes of the lockers shared, half and half, by the sleepers whom Loveland could dimly see hunched up under their gray blankets.

Bill unlocked the door of Loveland's cubicle for him. "This is pretty complete, ain't it?" he asked in a whisper which respected the slumber of others.

"The beds are good enough for mibe, but these rooms are fit for a lord."

It was a much humbled lord who shut himself up in the boasted magnificence of No. 15, there finding himself possessed of a narrow hospital bed spread with a gray blanket strongly accented with carbolic and just space enough in the case to undress if he chose. But for reasons which seemed good to him he did not choose.

Having bidden Bill good night without saying a word in disparagement of the Hat hotel (moved by a new selfishness which would not for the world have hurt his friend's feelings), Loveland took off collar, necktie and shoes to roll himself up in the disinfected blanket. The bed was not more than three or four inches too short for his tall body, and, though the mattress and pillow were as flat as stale jokes and hard as poverty, Val fell asleep.

Sleeping, dreams came to him more real in seeming than any happenings of the strange nightmare day just passed. They were of storms at sea, of fighting in South Africa, and when a light persistent tapping at the thin door wrenched him awake he thought he was being called for a night sortie. "Yes! All right!" he muttered, sitting up dazedly. "I—what?"

"Sh! You'll rouse everybody," whispered Bill Willing's warning voice. "Unlock the door, will you?"

Bill half asleep, Loveland blinked in the dim light, found the key in the lock and turned it. Like a shabby ghost Bill stole into the cubicle, "Mighty sorry to rouse you out so early," he said in cautiously lowered tones, "but it's a o'clock, and in half an hour I've got to be at the restaurant to begin work. If you'll get ready and come along the boss's daughter, Miss Lizzie, may take a shine to you and smuggle you a breakfast when Alex, under the Great, her pa, ain't there to say no."

By the time that Bill had made his plans clear Loveland's drugged memory had begun to work. He recalled everything with the sensation of having opened a gate to a free troop of grunting wild pigs. He was cold. The carbolic smell, which he hated, made him feel sick. His head throbbed as if tacks were being stuck into his temples and torn out again. His muscles were stiff, and he felt more tired than when he had lain down. It was disgusting to think that he had slept in his clothes in such a place as

"HEH PAINT THERE TO SAY NO."

Providing for the Future. "Why do you insist on taking that youngster's photograph every few weeks?" "After he has plunged into the hardships and responsibilities of mature life he can take the pictures out and look at 'em. When he sees how his mother used to dress him and cut his hair he'll feel more resigned to being grown up."—Washington Star.

New Link With Cuba.

The hope that the United States and Cuba would some day be linked together by a regular steamship service as speedy and luxurious as any between America and Europe has been realized. Havana has been brought within less than a three-days' sail of New York, and travelers may now enjoy all the luxuries of modern ocean travel on the voyage.

Be on Guard Against Despair.

Far better spend a whole life in diligent, nyo, cheerful and unrelenting toil, though you never attain the pinnacle of your ambitious desires, than to turn back at the first appearance of misfortune, and allow despair to unnerve your energies, or sour your naturally sweet and cheerful disposition.—Hilpa.
